Sayan Flower Garden

All herbs are collected in the Sayan Mountains during the period when the plants have their greatest biological value according to the lunar calendar. They are harvested only by hand and whole in order to preserve the maximum amount of nutrients.

Sagan-Daila

It is used as a stimulating, tonic and adaptogenic agent. Hunters drink this infusion of leaves, relieving fatigue and giving vigor, as an alternative to tea after a long walk pursuing a beast.

Roseroot

It restores strength after a serious illness and is used as a tonic; it is recommended to drink this infusion during strenuous physical and mental work.

Kuril tea

It is used not only if you have low immune function, and also simply because its invigorating but pacifying effect allows you to bring both soul and body into harmony.

Thyme

It restores health, contains numerous useful substances. Has an antiseptic and soothing effect.

BUFFET

About the names

The names of all the suggested beverages correspond to the XVIII-XIX centuries. The main part of the name is the type of the drink:

erofeich, ratafia, vodka, nalivka (fruit liqueur). As for the second part, which is mostly an adjective that reflect the character of the drink: aniseed erofeich, rowan ratafia, bersenevaya nalivka (gooseberry liqueur), milk filtered lemon vodka.

EROFEICHES

Erofeich is the Tzar of a Russian buffet. These beverages, being born in the XVII century, existed until the last quarter of the XIX century. They had always been the most expensive drinks that were available only for noble and merchant societies.

The suggested erofeiches are classically prepared and represent quarter distillation drinks that have an approximate alcoholic content of 56 % by volume. It is served exclusively from the ice in small and chilled wine glasses of 30-40 ml.

Erofeich is swallowed at one gulp without having anything with it at first, one should wait for a particular warming feeling in his stomach.
